WUCK General Manager Convicted

At the last Student Council meeting of the fall semester, WUCK General Manager, Jeff "Asteroid-child" Pontoon was convicted of misconduct in office and asked to resign.

The landmark decision, handed down by five men, three women and thirty-two airheads puts an end to the longest running controversy ever to face Kean's student government. At a tense and emotionally filled Student Council meeting, both opponents and proponents of Mr. Pontoon spoke to their elected student representatives in an attempt to win them over to their side.

During the all-important vote, all was still except for the occasional crunching of Vice-President Michele Cousin's barbecued potato chips and the burping of ever-drunk WUCK ex-News Director Saul "Scoop" "Notorious Caucasian" Cardiac.

The first vote frustratingly turned out to be a dead tie, 15 for Pontoon's ouster, 20 against his ouster, and 5 waiting for instructions from Parliamentarian Ray "see my string" Parentay.

A fifteen minute recess after the first vote produced an example of student lobbying at its best, with both pro and con factions using virtually every persuasive tool available to influence council members. These included (a) the exchange of money between Pontoon and council members, (b) the exchange of money between council members and other council members, and (c) the exchange of audio equipment between Pontoon and council members.

When the K K KRONICLE queried Student Organization Business Manager Gus Zero about the legality of money transsactions at the meeting he replied, "Don't worry. All the council members filled out vouchers and will be reimbursed in full at the student's expense. It's a perfectly normal procedure."

Discussion prior to the second vote was limited by part time Student Organization President Joyce Marinara, who set a time limit of .009 seconds for proponents of Mr. Pontoon and "as long as you want" for his opponents. This action incited several members of the crowd who were politely told by Sargeant-of-Arms Gary Lambert-daughter to "either quiet down or I'll break your arm."

The second vote of the council was divided as follows:

- 21 for Pontoon's removal
- 16 against removal
- 1 "don't know"
- 1 "don't care"
- 1 "what vote?"

After being sentenced, Jeff Pontoon was locked away in the Campus Police detention block, while awaiting to be transported to Rikers Island to serve his sentence.

Safe and sound after being rescued, the babies rest at Campus Police Headquarters awaiting the extensive interrogation about their ordeal to follow.

Notorious Campus Baby Selling Gang Smashed By SWAT

One hour of furious investigation and 3 phone calls proved fruitful last Tuesday for the newly organized Special Weapons Attack Team (SWAT) as he captured 4 members of the notorious Swap'em Baby Selling Gang.

Following an anonymous tip from a dishearted member of the gang, Cyrus "Super Cop" Hardy, SWAT captain, broke into Bartlett 506 to discover the hideout of the 4 hoodlums.

According to Hardy, a tall, black, suave and sometimes sophisticated police officer, "I knew the call was on the level... I had a gut feeling, I just had lunch. The caller told me the situation and told me to hurry."

Moves Out

Hardy listened and dashed out of his office in Dougall Hall and into his special and moderately priced campus SWAT mobile where he donned his bullet-proof vest and riot helmet and checked his M-16 rifle.

"I pulled up in front of Bartlett at 5:06 P.M.," recalls Super Cop. "I made my way up to the stairs and popped off a burst on the third floor just to warm the gun up, I didn't want it to jam in a critical situation."

Up on the fifth floor Hardy noticed an unusual aroma coming from the end apartment, 512. He said, "I would have bursted in and investigated, but I knew the baby gang rips out legs and arms of their little victims just for laughs, so I pushed on."

A Plastic Explosion

Finally reaching 506 at 5:07 P.M., the officer put some plastic explosives in front of the apartment door, set the timer for 1 minute and waited.

The deafening explosion sent pieces of wood splinters flying down the hall and into the room itself. Hardy reminisces, "If I didn't have my riot helmet on, I would have been blinded for sure." A few of his student spectators weren't so fortunate.

Dolly Partonn, a once sexy blond who is majoring in physical education, will be available, that is when she comes out of the hospital, if you like that type. Chip Kelly, a freshmen majoring in special education, will become a participant in that program as the concussion from the blast caused severe brain damage.

Tables Turned on Board of Trustees

In a cold but fiery afternoon last evening, an enraged and sometimes silly Board of Trustees tried desperately to hold onto their jobs. This action taken by powerful and influential students, whom have literally taken over the Kean Kollege campus, overruling and overriding all decisions made by the flabbergasted administration.

The current take over is that of the Board of Trustees, who over the years, have made cause for the students to be angry and upset. The students in power hold many grudges for the trustees and now demand their severance, commanding that the board be brought to the football field and be either drawn and quartered or tar and feathered. Last evening the sentences were pronounced.

Big Mouth Speaks

Presiding over the meeting was the head of the new committee to take over the administration, T.B.M. Connell. Connell, whom the students have affectionately nicknamed "Big Mouth," is a little known, sometimes stoned, and always right, was asked to make a statement for the press. BM too overcome with emotion, could only say, "we want those b...s dead." When asked why the meeting was being held BM said "We wanted to see those b...s crying and begging for their lives. Also we live in a free and democratic society and it is only fair to hold this meeting."

The first Board of Trustees member to plead for his life was the exchairman John Brown. He demanded to know the reasons why they were to be slayed. He commanded, "this so-called committee should be put on their parents' knees and spanked." Connell, in reply to Brown's statements interrupted, "Sorry buster, your five minutes are up. And if any of you people wan't know why, we'll send ya a letter, after the experience!"

Brown in desperation tried to commit suicide in front of the committee, and was taken away by the plain-clothes Sibonese Liberation Gorrillas placed among the audience.

Board Pleads For Lives

Many other board members tried to plead their case using such excuses as little children at home, and having made "plans" for the day of the execution. All were heard, and after making a statement, were carried away by the gorrillas.

Some other people on hand watching the proceedings cheering and laughing as the board pleaded and cried were the famous husband and wife shark eating team, Jaws Weiland and Teeth Pizzollo. Also present was the gruesome threesome winner of the children eating contest, Detz, Hander, and Vogle.

The meeting was called to an end when Chairman Connell said "Com'on guys, lets go get a beer and forget this s...t." The ex-Board of Trustees in desperation for their lives, tried to mug the committee. The crowd was calmed after four cartridges of machine gun bullets were emptied into their stomachs.

So lives the devine rights of the administration.

EDITORIAL

Kean Kollege should be renamed. It should be called Peachy Kean Kollege for one reason. That reason is that everything is just so peachy around this campus.

The teachers are happy. The students are happy. The administrators are happy. And the staff members are happy. Everything is just so rosy that you just couldn't ask for things to be better.

There are no complaints around campus anywhere. There are no cases of injustice. There is nothing that could possibly be criticized. Everybody is good friends with everyone else on this picturesque campus.

This raises a problem for the Kean Kollege Kronicle. There are no issues to editorialize. Everyone is so cheery that we would like to cite the cooperation everyone has been giving to everyone else and to remind all that it's great that everything is peachy keen!

Point

Another semester has come to a close and the Executive Board of Student Organization is still finding it impossible to work together as a unit.

Separate personalities has caused chaos in the ranks of immature and still inexperienced teable-minded self-serving individuals. I say that Student Org. is teetering on the brink of total collapse and no Executive Board member gives a damn.

The personality conflicts have sent a once cohesive student government whose primary goal was to serve the students back to square-one, disaster. The sad part about this reality is that each member of the ailing Executive Board is well aware of this catastrophic problem, but each has been too wrapped up in their own infinitesimal world to confront it and bring it back to an equilibrium point of harmony.

President Joyce Marinelli, with a new head of hair counts down the days in which her term in office will end. She has mentioned to me about the problem in Student Org., but echoes her inability of solving it since she is only one female, I mean one person.

This cowardness to isolate and solve the problem has led the back-boneless Marinelli Regime into the closets everytime a critical issue has arisen where unity was a critical factor in the solution.

In the National Student Association (NSA) incident at the beginning of the semester, the censorship of Joe Ginarte at the NSA convention resulted in almost total collapse of any relationship between certain members of the Executive Board. One crusading Gus Garcia, striving for truth and justice for all caused such hatred and behind the back name calling that the organization was being held together by a thread.

The Treasury Department is also drifting amuck. A quick reactionary Treasurer, Greg Gomes sits home worrying about polishing up his lay-up shot for the next basketball game instead of pondering Student Org.'s financial situation for next semester and guiding his assistant, Gus Garcia through the ropes.

Indeed, the Vice President's office is also below par as a woman sits behind her desk, very

These facts will result in the eventual downfall of Student Org. itself. Maybe not tomorrow, maybe not next week, but soon.

The Truth

Dear Editor,

During the past few months I have served as President of Student Organization and have enjoyed it for the most part. I have been criticized by many different people for many different reasons. I have tried by best and you just can't ask much more of me. You try to do a job and all you get is grief.

During the spring semester, my office will be open and will continue to work for the students. I hope that the other officers of Student Org. will also do so. If Cookie would be a Vice President, and Greg and Gus would be treasurers, and Connie and Cathy would be secretaries, and Joe would be a coordinator and Ann would just be an asst-business manager, then the good job that I am doing would be recognized. C'mon gang, let's make it a good semester.

The Whole Truth

Dear Editor,

I have one semester's experience behind me and am anxiously waiting the start of the second semester as Vice President of Student Organization. Although it has been a rocky road for some during the first half, I have found the going very pleasant.

I have served all segments of the student population and will continue to do so if my fellow officers will allow it. The jobs are tough but can be made easier by being around alot more. If Joyce was in five days a week, and if Greg is around five days, and if Gus was around, and if Connie was in, and if Cathy was behind her desk, and if Joe came around and if Ann would stay behind her books, then my work would be seen for what it is-a piece of work!

And Nothing But

Dear Editor,

With one semester gone and one ready to begin, I am very proud of the job I have done as Treasurer of Student Organization. I have kept every funded group strictly within the set guidelines and rules. I have done by job and no duties have been neglected. Without me I fear that Student Org. might have fallen apart.

My experience of one and a half years has shown that I can and will handle this tough assignment in the Treasury department. If Joyce, Cookie, Cathy, Connie, Gus, Joe, and Ann would try to handle their duties, as well as I have handled mine, Student Org. would be in fine shape!

More Truth

Dear Editor,

Let me come right to the point. If I want it — I get it. As my constituents, you the students, will get what you want and deserve. As Assistant Treasurer and an elected official, I will see to that.

Because of my campaigning and many other commitments, I have found it difficult to be behind my desk 24 hours a day. Still it is not my fault that there are so many things wrong with Student Org. I think that the coming semester will be more productive provided that Joyce, Cookie, Cathy, Connie, Greg, Joe and Ann perform their respective jobs.

And More

Dear Editor,

The semester started with a big bang at the N.S.A. convention in Houston during which my rights as an American citizen were violated. I have overlooked this and have moved on to other things, such as my job service.

From these two examples, any fool can see that I am doing my job. As part of the Student Org. Executive Board, I can see that my fellow officers are not. Joyce has not been a President, Cookie has not been a Vice President, Greg has not been a Treasurer, Gus has not been an Assistant Treasurer, Cathy has not been a Secretary, Connie has not been an Assistant Treasurer, and Ann has been too much more than an Assistant Business Manager.

And More

Dear Editor,

I have just completed my third semester on the Executive Board of Student Organization Inc. of Kean College and am very anxious to start my fourth. My levelheaded decisions and recommendations have helped this year's executive board to respond to the needs and wants of the students of this school.

Although this year has not been as easy as last year, I know that this next semester could be as great as all of last year. This can be accomplished through some cooperation from our President—Joyce, our Vice President—Cookie, our treasurers—Greg and Gus, my assistant secretary—Connie, our N.S.A. coordinator—Joe, and our busy asst. business manager—Ann.

Name Withheld
By Request

And More

Dear Editor,

Over the past several months I have been the assistant secretary of Student Organization. Unlike the others I am willing to admit that I have done a terrible job and I am not afraid to tell the students.

I do not wish to blame my incompetency on the other executive board members. I have an all together different reason for being incompetent—I'm engaged.

Sincerely
Connie the Queen

And Now For Something Completely Different

Dear Editor:

Since I enrolled at this college, ten years ago, I have had the misfortune to read at least forty editorials attacking the Kean student for not getting involved. I have read numerous articles slurring me and my fellow classmates for failing to support various campus organizations. We have been forced to endure the derision of countless pompous columnists. We have been mocked, jeered, ridiculed and lambasted from one issue to the next. Well, I just wanted to tell you that you can go right on ahead with—our tirades about apathy, your sneering at our lack of imagination and concern, and our lazy attitudes,—because We Don't Care!

A Concerned
Student

General Manager
Convicted

Since the council meeting doubled as Student Organization's annual Christmas party, liquor and snacks were provided by Student Org. President Joyce Marinara. Some of the Pontoon supporters charged Marinara with "trying to get the council drunk so they wouldn't know what they're voting on."

Marinara defended her actions by saying that the party was a gesture of her "good will" and she further stated, "I don't have to get them (the council) drunk to cloud the issue at hand. Any Early Childhood major can attest to the fact that they don't know what they're voting on when they're stoned sober."

Perhaps the entire episode is best summarized by these final, emotional words of Student Organization Treasurer Greg Gonads who said,

"You see an ocean, you sail it,
You see a mountain, you climb it,

You see a car, you drive it
Right to Bozo City - or Bust!"

OP-ED

I, must disagree most vigorously with your recent editorial supporting the grading system currently in operation in the higher levels of education in New Jersey. Not only is it inadequate, inequitable, and unfair, but it is extremely humiliating for the average student. Just think of that word, "grading." That's what the government does with meat. What are we, just another hunk of meat to be packaged, stamped, and inspected?

This system is highly unjust, in that it is strongly biased in favor of students who study. It gives an unfair advantage to people who can read and write, while holding back students who may be just as smart, just because they happened to come from disadvantaged households. It makes poor students ashamed and provides them with a bad self-image. I recall what my father used to say, just before he was declared insane; "Son," he used to call me, "whenever I take off my shoes to count past ten, and I feel bad, I remember the time when I had no shoes. If that doesn't help, I remember when I had no feet and had to walk around on my knees. Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!"

Yes, He was a very strange man, but he taught me to be proud of what I am. And everything I am tells me that a system based on merit, where only the capable would be allowed to progress in wrong. How can the unqualified ever hope to attain positions of responsibility and trust if they are held back by the institutionalized hypocrisy of shortsighted individuals struggling to preserve the status quo.

Now, I don't mean to insinuate that professors are bigoted, though undoubtedly some are and some aren't, but I have to believe that a given instructor, filled with subconscious prejudices and stereotypic views that were instilled from his formative years, is bound to view a paper unfavorably if the student has blown his nose on it or has turned an exam into a crude portrait of pudendum muliebre (I use the medical term).

This is understandable, but it clearly demonstrates that the present system is insufficient. I don't have all the answers, and I am the first one to admit that fact, but it doesn't take a great deal of common sense to realize that the consequences of continuing in the present lines will be disastrous. The community of Man is an organic one, one that depends on all of its parts to function properly. If we persist in the foolhardy ways we are accustomed, where will it lead? What will become of lawyers if we start graduating competent doctors? Or honest politicians? What will become of psychologists and psychiatrists if people are educated enough to realize what frauds they are? What will become of us all? The choice is yours!

Counterpoint

Well, I've heard some cheap shots and seen some low blows in my day, but this takes the cake. You know, Clara, sometimes I think you don't read what you write, but in any event its cruel to make us do so.

All this talk about some Executive Bored of Student Organization. Well, isn't everybody? I don't see any reason for panic. Dr. Weiss's proposal to have members of the Student Organization dress up like Butterfly McQueen is certainly one step in the right direction. Others have suggested that they be dipped in fluorescent paint, have rabbit ears strapped around their heads, and a sign saying WE COME IN PEACE. Members of the Org. have been most cooperative in evaluating proposals, one even suggesting a Dolly Parton look-alike contest.

But, the point is that there's no cause for concern. Our Student Organization, which admittedly has its flaws, thrives despite a long string of vicious, degraded, and debased assaults from campus wowers, pecksniffs, blue noses, boobs, and borborhygmous tatheads. It is inevitable with any group of individuals forced to deal with one another on a daily basis, that discord and dissension will periodically break out. Look at Adolph Hitler. One general or another was always on the skids, with Der Fuhrer, but they managed to work together in relative harmony right up until he had them shot, and this harmonious atmosphere enabled Hitler to conquer most of Western Europe.

Now, I don't mean to draw a parallel between the Marinelli and Hitler Administrations. There are several differences between them. Hitler, you will recall, had a moustache. Nor do I want to suggest that Marinelli intends to conquer and pillage most of Western Europe. Indeed, that would be wholly uncharacteristic of her. Further, I hasten to assure you that she does not entertain notions of having Michelle Cousins or Greg Gomes shot. What, I am trying to establish is the idea that even if there is bad blood between Org. members, they are still able to function with their usual efficiency.

I regret having to read such ad hominem attacks against such fine and upstanding students. Maybe if they wore ratty clothes and smoked incest they would be more appreciated by their contemporaries, but it is a credit to their character that they refuse to give in to peer pressure. All I can say is, they make me proud to be a Kean Kollege undergraduate.

The OLD

Awaiting the renovations, the beloved pub looks like a ghost town.

The PUB

All behind the bar stocks were removed. (I don't think I've ever seen the bar this clean.)

This is the way the pub will be remembered. As that warm, friendly, homey sort of place that was always opened to us and our friends.

Farewell, old pub, constant friend of many a student (and professor). Good luck with your face lift.

Renovations

And the New

To try and recapture that homey feeling, the pub now offers lunches and dinners. As you can see movies are still being shown in the pub.

Well, a month or so and a couple thousand dollars later. . .Viola!
Instant class, elegance and higher priced drinks.

The new bar! Quite a change, huh. The stock includes only the finest imported wines and liquors.

Students who want to visit the pub will have to make reservations a week in advance. (Men please wear a jacket and tie. Ladies please wear a skirt or a pantsuit.)

Hotline Director To Be Traded For Rink?

After numerous attempts to gain the title of a varsity sport and to receive more funding, the Kean Kollege Ice Hockey Team has decided to take matters into their own hands.

Squired Hockey captain, Mitch Willer stated on behalf of the team, "We tried to work within the system, but nobody wants to listen so we have decided to raise funds on our own." The plan of action is to kidnap the director of Hotline and to hold him for the ransom money that will keep our team going."

Upon contacting Kean's Communication Help Center, several very excited volunteers said that their director, Old MacDonald had disappeared several days ago and phone calls from the kidnappers have been coming in on a regular basis.

"At first they asked for money but after a few calls they said that they also wanted a skating rink to be build on campus!" Joe Savalle stated. "We have asked both Student Org. and the Administration to help us get our director back."

During one phone call, Old MacDonald was allowed to say that he was being well taken care of and was in good spirits. He said that he was being watched round the clock by John Long, Bob Bummer, and a Moose. He said he wasn't frightened but hoped that this great bunch of people got everything they had requested because they really deserved it.

MacDonald added, "The team played their best game last night against N.J.I.T. when they out-shot their opponents 37-12." The final score incidentally was 4-0.

When asked to comment about Student Org's position, President Joyce Marinelli said, "We cannot take a stand as the kidnapping is politically oriented. Greg Gomes may draw up an official position paper later on this week or early next week."

One anonymous source who is close to the President said that Dr. Weiss was not ruling out the possibility of freezing the swimming pool several days a week for the team. The compromise solution was not available at press time but is scheduled to be announced soon.

President Weiss' office has issued the following announcement: "A temporary restraining order has frozen the indoor swimming pool of Kean Kollege. The temperatures will be dropped in order to make the waters solid enough for the Kean Ice Hockey team to utilize the facilities two days a week. These days designated temporarily will be Mondays and Tuesdays.

The water temperature will be raised on Wednesday to a comfortable swimming temperature. Swimming will be allowed Wednesday through Saturday. On Sunday the temperature will be dropped again. We hope that this will not inconvenience you or interrupt activities in the pool area. This is a temporary order and will be effective immediately."

From Garden To Garden State

Knicks Follow Nets To N.J.

In an unprecedented move, the New York Knickerbockers announced today that they will be following the ABA rivals, the Nets to play in New Jersey. General Manager Dart Handle said that the team will play at Kean Kollege starting in the '79 season.

Handle stated that Kean Kollege was the logical place since it is certainly located in a beautiful, yet tranquil and serene area. The Knicks will be moving into the Kean Arena (D'Angola Gym) next season.

President Weiss ecstatic over the surprised announcement and future revenues stated, "I think that this move will benefit the Kollege and help us finance our new 5 million dollar Student Center." Chuckling he added, "I can't imagine why a professional basketball team like the Knicks would ever consider playing on our dilapidated and interior court, but I'm glad they did."

Weiss received a telegram yesterday from the club stating their intentions of using the facilities at Kean Kollege. Weiss stated, "We'll take the Knicks for everything they got and what they'll give us. You got to grab for all the gusto you can."

Knick Coach Willis Reed said that he can't understand why the organization is moving to Kean. "The Garden has much better facilities and you can fit more people in it." He added, "I ain't going to play in any two-bit, chintzy sports complex like they got. I'll quit before I play in that place." Finally Reed broke down in tears and said that he loves New York, the muggings, the theatre, and especially 42nd Street. "I love the big apple," he concluded.

Guard Earl Monroe stated, "Since I'm the most important fantastic player on this team, I resent the fact that I was not informed of the move before it was leaked to the press. When you're on top, the little people mean nothing, like the fans, absolutely nothing."

In response to the move Monroe said, I like Jersey, especially their sweet Jersey corn. New York is falling apart and I don't want to play in a town that's going bankrupt. How are the fans going to pay for their tickets if they don't got any money."

Ex-Knick Walt Frazier phoned in his comment, "I glad I'm off such a bozo club like that. Imagine just getting up and walking out of a town that loves them and into Jersey, that cancer ridden, den of death."

When the transition is completed, the Knicks will have absolute control over the Kean Arena while the athletics at this college will take a back seat. One administrator said, "Money is more important than the students well being, besides we're doing it for them. The new student center is about 5 years away from completion. Would you want to pay a $3 a credit student union fee in addition to your student activity fee?"

Hawley Waterman, director of Athletics, vehemently stated, "We're being sold down the river by the administration just so they could fund their new student center. Kean's basketball team will not sit idle and let those fascist egg-headed people over in Townsend tell us when to play basketball." We'll picket them and then maybe get a little violent.

Seven Swimmers Get Bumped

Seven members of the Kean Kollege Swimming team had to be rushed to Union Memorial Hospital on Monday, January 30 when they tried to jump into the indoor swimming pool which had frozen over during the weekend. Concussions were suffered by three swimmers while minor cuts and bruises were the only injuries to the other would be swimmers.

Coach Larry's Pitz said that he was as surprised as the others to see the solid water. "The water has a tendency to be a little cold on Monday, but this is ridiculous. The entire team was lined up on the one side of the pool and were going to take a few laps together to get warmed up, but when I blew my whistle for them to jump in, instead of hearing splash, I heard seven thuds!"

Four members of the team were released from the hospital the same day while the others were detained for a few days. The team is expected to begin practice again today.

At the Physical Plant Building, where the heat to the pool comes from, nobody seems to know who turned down the temperature. Armand Brillante, director, said, "The problem couldn't have been with my staff. Nobody would do something like that. We are trying to track down the problem somewhere in the line between the Gymnasium and Maintenance Building."

The Director of Athletics, Hawley Waterman, is appropriating funds to get the swimming team the wetsuits that they requested last year. The wetsuits were requested because of the cold waters that the team practiced in. Waterman said that he now understands the need for this equipment.

Intramural & Club News

Intramural basketball was hot and heavy last week as the Ki team took on everyone else. Since they claimed to be the best in everything including basketball, the rest of the league accepted the challenge. The game was scheduled to start at noon but was held up for an hour while the Ki team readied themselves with a luncheon at Krumpy's Korner.

When the game finally got underway, representatives from Busche, W.U.C.K., Hotline, Groove Pip Groove, Nu Sigma Pie, Boston Creme Pie, Alpha Theta Pie, Nu Theta Pie, and Pizza Pie's teams joined the squad opposing Ki. The Ki team, through pre-game boasting, had the rules changed to allow the other team as many players on the court as they thought necessary. The team chose to send everyone out to start the game.

After a disastrous first quarter for the Ki team, the score was 56-3. Through hard hitting and unscrupulous tactics Ki managed to take out half of the opposing players who were forced out of the game because of injuries. The score narrowed to 70-22 by the halt.

After all the blood was mopped up and the bodies were cleared, the second half began peacefully. Wisecracks by the members of both teams turned the basketball game into a boxing match during which the rest of the league decided to quit.

Jack Severed, speaking for the Ki team said, "If they quit, then we win. This proves that we are the chumps."

Learn To Ski

The Ski Club proudly announces the addition of a slalom course at Kean. The course located in Vaughn-Eames parking lot is opened to all students except Littlaliens. We don't want any injuries. Get my drift.

WUCK DeeJay Encounters A Close Encounter

It was late Friday night, with the wind howling about the deserted Kean radio station, when WUCK deeJay Rapid Robert Kern, having just spun the last record onto the turntable, detected a strange sound over the airwaves. Today, Mr. Kern has advised this reporter that the incident was the beginning of an eery night which was to culminate in a close encounter of the third kind; contact with an alien from outer space.

"I was mixing my coffee, 3 scoops grounds, 3 cups water, cover and let percolate, then serve with quartered lemons and crushed almonds," says Kern, "when suddenly I began to hear these faint tapping sounds. It was my left shoe (and I hate disco!)" Kern continues, "Well, I went back to filing records and cleaning up, when a bright light flashed through the room blinding me. It seemed almost like the room was on fire, yet it wasn't burning. I remember thinking to myself Uh, oh, I hope its not an angel of the Lord, I have to be home early tonight, and He'll want me to lead His people somewhere or kill my son."

Sweaty Kean Shudders

"Well, I took the earphones and put them on to close the show, when I began receiving regularly grouped bleeps. Only then did it occur to me that it must be a flying saucer trying to contact me." Mr. Kern began to shudder as he spoke, and occasionally he would look off into space with a blank expression across his features. As an old friend, I realized that a repetition of the words "paperback printing rights," was enough to snap him out of such doldrums.

"Now I know something about cryptography," he said, "but those first few messages gave me fits. At one point I thought I'd cracked it, but then I decided that intelligent aliens would not travel all those light years just to inform me that the Inky Dinky spider crept up the waterspout."

Sexy Fire

Maidens Identified

"Finally, sometime around three a.m. I deciphered the alien's language. Who are you, I asked them. "We are the Fire Maidens of Delta Five," they replied. "Well, I decided, in that case we can dispense with the customary shaking of hands. Why have you come here, I inquired. 'We have come to see if its as bad as they all say,' they replied. "I told them I didn't understand, but they just kept repeating the same message. Finally, the question that had been bothering me most, I had to ask, but why a humble soul like me, why did you come to this particular radio station."

For a long time there was no reply, then the ship drew near the window of the radio station, and one of the Fire Maidens appeared at the window of their craft. Then the reply came over the wire; "We surveyed every station on your planet, and discovered that of them all, your station transmits to the fewest number of people. That demonstrates the advanced trait of mercy."

Laverne and Shirley

"With that the spaceship began to gain altitude. It was then I realized the nature of my visitor's question. There was still time to send them their answer. So I bleeped out the solution to the question that had sent them journeying across the galaxies: Its about two girls that work in a factory in Milwaukee, and its worse then ever your advanced race could possibly imagine."

Due to a lack of interest in the exciting yet dangerous fraternity and sorority scene, one of Kean's largest frats has become a dwindling club for frustrated jocks. The brothers of Sigma Theta Chi in an effort to obtain money have sold their trophy and have been forced to move out of their beautiful frat house located in Elizabeth on Jefferson Avenue. The new house is located in a less respectable area in Elizabeth and accommodates a smaller crowd. The brothers give their word that they will continue to throw monthly parties at the new house, but admission will be $5.00 a person and bring your own stuff. Time marches on...

Golden Arches Replaces Ailing Food Service

In response to the growing unrest about the inferior quality of campus food, Dean Pot Iputzlito has just closed a deal with McDonalds Food Restaurant to open a franchise at Kean by April 1978.

According to Ronald McDonald, the Kean Kampus is a choice location for opening a fast food restaurant. "The market is here and we have an obligation to these human beings to serve decent 100% all-beef patties with no filler."

The restaurant will be opened to the public and students. Winning Dean Iputzlito stated, "I'm sure the student populace will appreciate what I do for them. The present food on this campus is so bad that the rats don't eat it." Iputzlito reiterated, "It's bad."

Too many students have gotten sick from eating hogmeat steak sandwiches and horsemeat hamburgers ladden with soybean filler. Five students died last semester from maggot infested hamburgers which were forced upon them.

Steve Pusak, former food service director stated, "I don't care about the students. They'll eat anything." Pusak is being replaced by the administration, "I gave them the best food for the money. The quality is the same as any restaurant, if you like the greasy spoon type."

President Nathan Weeze commenting on the golden arches stated, "I think this is a giant step forward toward quality food on this campus, finally I want to compliment Dean Iputzlito on his fine effort in securing this franchise."

The college will be ranking in approximately $250,000 in the first year alone. The money will be used to secure a Pizza Hut franchise early next year.

Student Org. Prepares To Give Sloan Lounge A Facelift - Encore!

During the semester break, the Executive Board of Student Organization decided upon this years special project. Every year the governing body of Student Org. decides upon a special project which will in some way upgrade the campus and benefit the students.

In their 77-78 budget, Student Org. has approximately $5,000.00 to cover the cost for such a project. Some examples of a few past Student Org. projects are the renovating of the Little Theatre. The purpose of this was to achieve a smaller version of the T.P.A. This smaller copy would be used in the same manner as the T.P.A. the only difference being it would accommodate a smaller crowd of smaller people.

Another project was the tearing down of Sloan Lounge walls. The justification for this project was that Sloan Lounge needed a facelift, it lacked the proper facilities to meet the needs of the students. It was felt by the 1974 executive board that Sloan Lounge had become a room separate from the rest of the Student Center. Acting upon this analysis, down came the walls and proper facilities were installed. Sloan Lounge had received its facelift.

Sloan Renovated Again

Joyce Marinara, member of Delta Sigma Pie and part-time president of Student Org., stated that this years project would be the renovation of Sloan Lounge. Marinara expressed the views of the executive board concerning this matter, "We feel that Sloan Lounge needs a facelift, it lacks the proper facilities to accommodate Kean students."

Many students have shown a displeasure with Sloan Lounge in its present condition. A majority of students that do use the lounge frequently have one main grievance concerning the furniture that is now in use. As one student so mildly put it, "I can never sit still, it's impossible to achieve a comfortable position. If I sit in one position to long (about five minutes) I get sores."

Gus Garcia, assistant treasurer of Student Org. and advisor to the Spanish Social Club stated that he has done everything in his power to help the students and he will continue to fight for what the students want on campus.

The Brains

Greg Gonads so called Treasurer of Student Org. has checked with the brains of Student Org., Mrs. Ann McKnight and both feel that Student Org. has enough money to cover all up-coming expenses.

Gonads stated, "That the students should have a room separate from the rest of the Student Center. It should be a place where the students can go to get away from the daily problems on campus such as attending classes and ah, ah attending classes."

Several ideas have been discussed and the executive board feels that first things first. "After we get the walls back up then maybe we'll work on getting furniture but we must meet the real needs of the students and what they want is for the walls to go back up. I know what the students need no matter what they say," stated Marinara.

The project is scheduled to start early February and will be completed by late March.

tinely, a freshman majoring in management science, loose both eyes to flying wood fragments. Minor injuries to other students included loss of limbs, vital organs, and torn clothes.

Got In The Way

Hardy commenting on the ugly sight said, "Those first aid people are sure fast." When asked about the casualties Hardy said, "They got in the way, I work alone." He then gave out a tarzan-like yell, "I'm SWAT captain."

All four members of the gang were critically killed in the explosion as the force blew them out of the apartment's fifth floor window. An exhausted Hardy said at the scene, "Tsk, tsk, crime doesn't pay." The names of the victims have not been released, but according to reliable sources, all four majored in Early Childhood.

The sleeping babies were in the bedroom and were safe and sound. Hardy said, "It was worth it. Look at those little darlings. The Chief will be proud of SWAT."

Martin 'Chief' Greenberg, director of Campus Police, stated, "All I will say is that we got our guns, now we got SWAT, watch out... CRIME KILLS."

A Shorty From New Jersey

Oh I'm proud to be a Shorty from
New Jersey
A place where Little People have a ball.

Us Shorties raise the Stars and Stripes in Jersey.
And when we do we still feel ten feet tall.

Oh I'm proud to be a Shorty from
New Jersey,
Where we don't envy people
cause they're tall.
Because we realize that when we hit 'em,
Them big ones just have twice as far to fall.

Oh I'm proud to be a Shorty from
New Jersey.
And Randy, he is welcome to drop in.
We've got feathers, and the tar's a-boilin'
We'll be glad to make a new man

Editorial

Last week The New York Post, under the editorship of Rupert Murdoch, ran an article on the controversy surrounding the song Short People, by Randy Newman. The “writer” of this article, in his gently mocking tone, revealed that he, like most people, is more a part of the problem than the solution. The fact is that most people are insensitive to the needs, wants, hopes, and aspirations of a short person, and in this way discriminate horribly against them. These “shortists” are able to continue their bigoted ways because everyone takes it like a joke, or brush you off with the thin assurance that, “we’ll take care of it, little fella.” Shortism is something to laugh at, they think.

But, have you ever tried getting a drink at a public fountain? Have you ever tried getting past the ticket office and into one of those French films where they wrestle on the beach with no clothes on? Do you have to hang from the ledge at the cashier window while you make a deposit at the bank? My people are tired of such shortist social barriers. Littlilians have been looked down at for too long. Soon, short brothers and sisters, we will rise up and take our proper place as useful citizens in an integrated society. Until such time, however, we demand the removal of the following words from the Independent as derogatory to Littlilians everywhere:

short-sighted - shortcomings - short-changed - short end of the stick - short fuse - come up short

And we offer the poem on page 1 to Randy Newman in rebuttal!

Sincerely,
Mayor of the Munchkin City

Policy of Exceptions

1. Exceptions is dedicated to becoming a focal point of communications for Half World and other shortist students.
- Our purpose is to educate and inform all students on the issues having an effect on the short people of the community.
3. Exceptions wants to show the positive achievements of Littlilians, and no other minority who are always neglected by the other media.
4. We are striving to serve the Half World community and to become the medium through which their hopes, aspirations, achievements and criticism can be voiced to all who will listen and to those who won't.
5. We are dedicated to truth and justice for all Littlilians.
6. Only through communication with each other can we gain a proper understanding of the needs of Littlilians and develop the community properly.
7. Our aim is to bring together our thoughts and ideas and share them with all our brothers and sisters.
8. Through Exceptions we hope to show the hardships of being short and to have everyone make amends.

Half World

The Half World Movement was formed yesterday when several Littlilians got together and caused a fuss. The Administration, not wanting any trouble convinced Student Organization to give the group the necessary funding to get underway. This new group welcomes any persons interested in joining provided these prospective members fit the requirements for membership. Membership is open to all.

The Half World Movement intends to unify all persons under five foot one even if they don't care to unify themselves with anyone. The different problems, lifestyles and dreams of Kean's short population will be brought into the limelight and will be dealt with properly. At the same time, this new organization hopes to bring to the Kean campus a new experience for all non-Littlilians by providing cultural, educational and social programs that would help in the enlightenment of everyone to the cultural scene of the people down under them.

As the organization progresses, there will be high goals in mind despite the fact that they cannot be reached physically; we will reach beyond them mentally. Projects for the future will include parties for the shortest day, the elevator shoes day, the shortest month, the shortest work week, the shortest president's birthday celebration and many many more. Ideas seem endless and a tremendous year stretches ahead, but members are needed. Littlilians have come a very long way considering their short legs and without support, all the work could be for naught.

Letters to the Editor

SA May Help You

Dear Editor:

Let me introduce myself as the President and co-founder of the SA (Shortys Anonymous), a non-profit organization which endeavors to help, cure, and hopefully restore to society, persons who suffer from Heights Disease. You know, being short is a disease. Much as that fact may discomfort the average Joe (or Joan) it must be realized by the brotherhood of man that short people suffer from an illness not of their own making and beyond their influence. They are not degenerates. They are simply persons, like you or myself, who are in need of a helping hand. You know, the man who died on the cross for our sins must have loved Littlilians; he made so little of them. Now with the aid of our Heavenly Father, SA provides an opportunity for short persons to come to grips with their situation via encounter groups, therapy sessions, meditation, and sexual depravities. . .no, uh, not that, I meant consciousness raising. Now, I won't claim that such treatment will make you grow, improve your social life, or, in fact, help you at all; but, it will give us all a good laugh, and will afford me the opportunity to humiliate my fellow man publicly, and that's not bad for a midget.

Sincerely,
Rev. I.D. Clare

Kane Praises Exceptions

Dear Editor:

Congratulations for being the first with an idea whose time has definitely come; a newspaper directed especially at Littlilians. I well remember the first time I sat down before a typewriter at the college. I just wanted to let you know that I was pleased and honored to have my name associated with your educational institution. (By the way, it's K-A-N-E.)

Sincerely,
Charles Foster Kane

One Handed Pastry

Dear Editor:

When you hold your first annual Short Day (appropriately assigned to be held on the shortest day of the year), I hope you will make mention of the Little French military genius who singlehandedly conquered most of Europe back in the days when it was worth the effort. Modesty forbids me mentioning his name, however, his first name was given to a sumptuous pastry, and you could get the last name by remembering that if you throw a bone to a dog he undoubtedly would pull the bone apart. He is famous for keeping one hand thrust into his jacket; and, for reasons I'd rather not expound upon, he has an aversion to Russia and Beef Wellington. Reputedly, he died of syphilis. . .ah, what a way to go!

Fed Up With Food

Dear Editor:

Ever since coming to this great institution, I have met with funny looks. Today I just got plain fed up with the system when I was in the cafeteria today placing my order.

As everyone knows, the food at this college is the pits. Well anyway, today I walked under the turnstyle and into the cafeteria line. I placed my order to the short order cook. I squeaked out a plain steak sandwich and even said please. This brought a round of laughs from everyone and the cook just simply ignored me.

Since I can't see over the tray rail I feel that the cook ignored my order because she couldn't see my face. This was one of the few times that I was completely ignored, usually people just laugh at me. It's murder in class when the professor calls on me. It's hard enough seeing the black-board even when I'm sitting up at the front of the class

A Famous Shorty

Today I sit at this machine with my heart full of sorrow and gloom. I have just finished reading the new short publication about the life and death of the famous and talented painter Toulouse-Latrec. Such grief the man went through for being so small, such sorrow for being a midget. After reading this publication I have a deep anger and compassion for those discriminated against for being small.

I beg of all readers to take time and read the biography of Toulouse-Latrec. We must start to look down at those suffering. Take time to pat a small person on the head. Smile at a shorty.

This was supposed to be a book review, but being moved so much by this book, I ask only of you, the reader, to join with me in my quest to find a small land where those little ones can live happily and shortily.

A Kean Kollege Konsumer Guide

This is one in a series of Konsumer affairs columns designed to aid the Kean student in general, and Littlilians in particular.

Although an education is not a tangible good like a television set or a stereo system, it is a commodity that we as konsumers must pay for. Therefore, we are entitled to our moneys worth in every aspect of our education here at Kean. This week's 'Kean Kollege Konsumer' sheds the naked light of day on the discriminating practices that are going on at Kean against the Littlian people.

For example, the great majority of the good reference books in the library are located on the uppermost shelves. At first glance this may seem like an honest oversight on the part of the library staff, but Exceptions has learned from inside sources that this practice is a deliberate attempt by this kollege to hamper the educational goals of the Littlian people. It is time that we as a people stand up for our rights and demand that we have equal access to the reference books just like normal-sized people.

Another blatant attempt to hinder our educational objectives is in the area of the dorm elevators. The placement of the elevator control panel is a deliberate attempt to make Littlilians late for class, and the anxiety felt by some Littlilians has forced them to leave school altogether. 'Kean Kollege Konsumer' will initiate a complete disclosure of this matter in a further education of Exceptions.

Another matter which we feel needs immediate attention is the location of the electric hot air hand dryers located in the restrooms throughout this kampus. They are obviously too high for any Littlian and this accounts for many a wet term paper being turned in the hence, a lower grade. Another one of the nasty tricks being perpetrated against the Littlian people.

This column could go on all day revealing the obvious, and not so obvious examples of this kollege's indifference to the real

Let's Get Small

Comedy Is Proven Prejudicial

Two weeks ago Steve Martin was invited back to host the very popular New York based show "Saturday Night Live." To put it in a nutshell, this is perhaps the most disgraceful and prejudicial move that the National Broadcasting Company has made yet this year.

Steve Martin, who lists his occupation on his income tax form as a comedian even though he is not funny, has made and continues to make fun of Littlilians.

"Let's Get Small" is the killer.

During this routine, Mr. Martin invites all the people of America to either get down on their hands and knees or chop off their legs or do something to make themselves shorter. He has yelled at the audience, "Let's Get Small!!" and the audience (who is probably made up almost entirely of Tallalians) roars with laughter.

There are two major flaws with this. Number one - how can normally sized or large sized people get small? It is a physical impossibility! If you are a specific size you cannot change your shape simply because some loud mouthed "comedian" tells you to. The other thing - number two - is that through this talk, Steve Martin is causing severe emotional disturbances to Littlilians throughout the country. The damage done might be corrected by SA (Shortys Anonymous) but this will take time and money.

I would like to encourage everyone, Littlilians as well as anyone else who is disturbed by this man, to write to NBC, your Congressmen, and your President to tell them just how bad this situation looks to the little people in America. Remember what they always say, "It's the little people who really count!"

needs of us Littlilians, but we feel our point has been made.

We at Exceptions believe that these problems can be alleviated, but it will take a real effort on behalf of the tall people who presently control this school. We sincerely hope that the right actions are taken so the Littlian people may enter the mainstrea, of academic life as they should be.

Short Order Cooks On Strike

The spokesmen for the short order peoples union today announced the short noticed strike of the Short Order Cooks of America. At midnight tonight there will be at least 500½ S.O.C. of A. out of work and on the streets of the country picketing.

The S.O.C. of A. are demanding along with the usual complaints of wages and hours, equal rights and better working conditions. One short cook, in the union hall last night, was quoted as saying, "How many times can you take a short order? I mean little is little, why can't we get big?"

The Union representative from Short Hills, N.J., Little Tommy Tiny, remarked upon the working conditions in short order restaurants, "First of all, the equipment is too high. Us short order cooks need breadth, not height. Also all of the waitresses yelling down to us doesn't help the atmosphere anyway."

The Big Business (B.B.) has agreed that the short order cooks should be recognized. The B.B. has decided to give their short cooks high heels as part of the regular uniform and install platforms so the cooks can reach comfortably.

More to come as it develops.

KLAYTON'S COURAGEOUS CORNER

I am appalled at the way the "non-smallnorty" population view us so called little people, treating us like inferiors. The time has come for us Littlilians to join together and stop this cruel and oppressive persecution.

Ever since the emancipation we have gotten the shaft, even though some of us have excelled in this one race world by conforming and turning into being Uncle Talls.

You can distinguish a Littlian from a normal person by his height. We are discriminated against by being put in inferior type education, sub-normal housing, and by being looked down at by the "normal" population.

I'm glad to see that the campus government has finally come to its senses by giving us this publication to express our superior ideas and show the campus community that we are not inferior and have something that we can offer the world.

We thank the finance board for never questioning our sometimes padded budgets and requests. Since we are a minority, we have certain things due us by the taller members of our society. When we were taken for our homes in Lilyput and brought over here to be in the circus, we were tormented and beaten over and over into accepting the situation.

It's about time we join together and overcome this situation. I say we must capitalize on the weakness of the taller people, hitting them where it hurts.

Good hunting Littlilians. Peace.

Small Turnout Chooses Winner

Celebrating their election victory, the new Half World Executive Board live it up before they start their busy term. Left to right are Treasurer Mary Midget, President Margaret Small, and Vice President J.J. Tiny.

"It's a small world again," state Vice President J.J. Tiny as he and the other two winning candidates celebrated their election victory over a small field of opponents.

Half World held its election yesterday and there was a very small turnout at the polls. According to one small loser, "It was very disappointing and I think that this election should be done over because of the small turnout."

The winning President, Margaret Small commented that she thinks it was a very fair election since she won. She said, "Just because there was such a small turnout doesn't justify a new election."

Approximately seven dwarfs voted during the polling period which lasted a mere 10 minutes. When asked about the short time in which the polls opened President Small said, "It's hard to get help these days since we are such a small organization."

Treasurer Mary Midget excited about her victory said that she hopes that her small contribution to the organization will benefit the entire student population. "I hope that I will live up to my campaign promises and serve my fellow Littlalian to the best of my ability. My door will always be opened to my fellow constituents."

Vice President J.J. Tiny whose majoring in Littlalian history and their contribution to the development of the United States hopes that his knowledge will help the organization to grow and prosper. "Since I am so knowledgeable in Littlalian history, I am sure that we can get a little more piece of the pie at Kean College by hook or crook." He added, "I'm fed up about being treated like a kid. We're adults in every way, except in a smaller package."

Half World's Business Manager Rust Small, no relation to the new president said, "The election was a huge success even though we have such a small apathetic group. It's a coincidence that the new president and myself have the same last name." He concluded by saying, "Small people are on the move again in America, nothing will stop us this time, not even the tallest person, SMALL POWER FOREVER!"

The budget for Half World for this year is $12,325. Approximately half of this small budget is used for partying. President Small commented, "We need the parties so that our members can see how it was in Lilyput before the dark time, before the Empire and so that they wouldn't forget the heritage of the Littlilians."

"We are different admitted Treasurer Midget, and because of this we need our own world on campus so that we could feel secure with our own kind. The other groups on this campus have their own clubs, the Ski Club, Chess Club, and many others. If these minority groups could have their own clubs then why can't the Littlilians."

When asked if this serving of communication with other non-minority students on campus would hurt the members of Half World, President Small broke in, "No way, minorities have to stick together or else it's curtains. Besides, our members do what we tell them to. Can't you tell how we control the Littlilians who sit on Student Council."

In closing, the Executive Board members stated that there will be a rehearsal of the Littlilians Goodspell Choir tomorrow at 12 noon in the Little Theatre.

Bakkeward Decision By State Supreme Court

The New Jersey Supreme Court has upheld a decision which legalizes the blatant discrimination of the state's shorter people. The decision in question was a ruling by the trial court which made it impossible for persons under six feet in height to be employed as state police officers. The State Supreme Court affirmed the ruling by a five to two margin.

Before discussing discrimination it is necessary to define the word itself. Discrimination, as defined by Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary is the act, practice, or an instance of discriminating categorically rather than individually. It is further defined as a prejudiced or prejudicial outlook, action, or treatment.

When an entire race is prevented from working in a field of work they choose - is that discrimination? As a taxpayer and a Littlalian, I say yes.

This decision will put Littlilians at one end of a rope with the tall (and they think mighty) at the other. This will be just the beginning of a trend that will close Littlilians out of many other areas of employment. The Short Society of America has come a long way and we cannot afford to let our rights go out the window. We are NOT a tiny minority!! Short people make up a large portion of the population and we will not take this ruling sitting down.

When the facts are laid on the table, there are arguments for both sides, but every American must decide for themselves just where their priorities are placed. Would you rather get a ticket from a Littlalian or be the tallest person on the unemployment line?

Profile Of The Month

Each month in this space will appear articles, essays, and interviews devoted to disseminating the message of the Short Experience, and instilling pride and promoting unity among the Short brothers and sisters everywhere.

Our first profile, gives us the extreme pleasure and privilege of chronicling the remarkable accomplishments and disappointments of one of many great Shortie-Americans, Kelvina Wampum. In addition to being so short that her wardrobe consists of hand-me-downs from her sister's Barbie doll, Mr. Wampum holds the distinction, as listed in the world renowned Guinness Book Of World Records, of being the most discriminated-against minority in the entire world. She is part Black, part American Indian, part Polish, and part whooping crane.

In addition to being short, Kelvina is black, hispanic, Jewish, poor, female, on the list of endangered species, gay, old, Polish, handicapped, blind, deaf, mute, cross-eyed, bowlegged, speaks with a lisp, last surviving veteran of the War of 1812, and a confirmed bachelorette (also a vegetarian). The preceding catalogue demonstrates that Ms. Wampum is the finest example of a victim of prejudice available in America, hated by almost all of her fellow Americans.

By pre-arranged code, Ms. Wampum will communicate by tapping on the table with her spoon.

Exceptions: Ms. Wampum, I guess the first question on my mind is, how do you manage to get along financially with only a meager government pension?

Wampum: Tap. . .tap, tap, tap. . .tap, tap. . .tap, tap, tap, tap, tap. . .tap, tap. (Well, I managed to supplement my income by doing some work as an automobile mechanic.)

Exceptions: Still, the dues for the union alone must set you back a pretty penny.

Wampum: Tap. . .tap, tap, tap. . .tap, tap. . .tap, tap. (I don't belong to any union).

Exceptions: What! Lousy scab! Do you realize that you're destroying the American working-man, you low-lying worm. Why for two cents I'd. . .ah, the hell with you. . .

Wampum: Tap, tap, tap. . .tap. . .tap, tap, tap, tap, tap, tap. . .tap, tap. . .tap, tap, tap. . .

Fed Up With Food

and those chairs are so slippery, well that's another letter.

I demand an apology from the entire food service on this campus, 3 A's for next semester, free food, and a 1978 Lincoln Continental. If these demands are not met I plan to sue the college. I am a Littlalian and I am fed up with being pushed around. I want what I deserve and what I demand. Remember I'm a minority and I'm special plus deprived by the Tallalian population.

I am thankful for this publication to vent my anger since the Kean Kollege Kronicle would have never printed this letter.
